

Final Reflection for OTMR Case Study

The case study was completed in around 3 weeks. Through this process we learned that primary design steps help make the whole design process much simpler and more efficient. Github is a powerful tool that can make sure everyone is working on the most current version of the project and can streamline workflow. The case study was interesting due to its real world implications. The case study also helped solidify concepts we have learned in class as we were able to put theory to use.
